

William A. Clark, S.J., S.T.D.

Associate Professor Religious Studies
College of the Holy Cross

William A. Clark, S.J., is an Associate Professor in the Department of Religious Studies at the College of the Holy Cross in Worcester, Massachusetts. He specializes in systematic theology, particularly ecclesiology, and has a special interest in parish life and issues affecting local church communities.

Fr. Clark earned degrees at Williams College, Williamstown, Massachusetts, and Loyola University of Chicago. He took his doctorate in sacred theology at the Weston Jesuit School of Theology in Cambridge, Massachusetts, and began teaching at Holy Cross in September 2001.

Fr. Clark offers various courses on Catholicism, local church communities, and Christian prayer. He is the author of "A Voice of Their Own: The Authority of the Local Parish" (Liturgical Press, 2005), and various articles, book chapters, dictionary entries, and reviews. He has also presented many lectures and retreats for parishes and other church groups in New England, around the country, and abroad.

In addition to his academic work, Fr. Clark has extensive experience in parish pastoral work, retreat direction, and music ministry. He served as pastor of St. Thomas Aquinas Church in Kingston, Jamaica, for several years. A CD of his original Christian music, performed with a small group of musicians named "Spirit Call," is available from him, for the benefit of poor families in Jamaica.
